Module selection rules

METS students may select modules up to a maximum value of 25 ECTS credits per semester. They are strongly recommended to choose options which complement, rather than overlap with, subjects that they have already covered. Advice on suitable choices may be sought from the METS coordinator at the home university, and/or the Swansea coordinator Andrew Rothwell (a.j.rothwell@swansea.ac.uk). For further details of modules, click here and follow the link to the MA Translation and Interpreting Handbook.

By agreement with the relevant module lecturer(s), it may be possible for students to audit (sit in on) one or more additional module(s). However, such modules cannot be taken for additional credit, students will not take assessments or receive feedback, and permission to audit may be refused on grounds of lab capacity, group size and balance, etc.

The list of modules given below is correct as of October 2015. Module availability may change subject to staffing constraints and/or student numbers, lab capacity etc. Swansea University reserves the right to modify as necessary the list of modules available to METS students, but will always undertake to provide a suitable range of choices.
